Tegris®

$477.00

A fixed direct assault panel with flat straps for rapid exfill.

Large internal workstation_
External blood admin pouch_
Flat straps, quick release system_
Use with single unit container_

The Damage Control Resuscitation (DCR) 7L is designed to optimize the delivery of the first unit of blood at the point of injury (POI) before entering into a massive transfusion protocol. This slim bag is designed to carry diagnostics, access, and a single unit container, as well as POI drugs in a tiered load-out. The first-line MARCH belt is recommended for use with this product. This product does not come stocked.

The DCR 7L has flat straps for when it's time to get on the move, and quick-release buckles to easily drop the panel for urgent patients. It provides the wearer with a virtually unnoticed med bag that shifts weight directly through the back plates.

1.5L Hydration compartment reservoir_ Large internal workstation_ TEGRIS reinforcement prevents crush_ Customizable bungee panel_

The DCR 9 Liter is an iterative approach to load carriage for the point of injury medic. Increased capacity over the DCR 7L, which is primarily fixed to the plate carrier and offsets primary load carriage to a MARCH belt setup. The DCR 9L gives more options for full medical load out of a primary aid bag without the need to supplement with a MARCH belt.

The design is based on a SAPI plate and eliminates the extra length seen with other aid bags, aiding in the ability to carry items on the back of a gun belt. The rounded top kills dead space when rounding corners and Velcro hook keeps the bag firm and fixed to the plate carrier for stability.

Flat straps optimize storage in vehicles or helicopters, reducing snag hazards from loose straps. The exterior is designed to accept two tear away CRO Blood Transport Containers, moving blood storage to the exterior of the bag, and allowing resuscitation equipment to be stored inside.

The custom bungee retention panels provide retention and customization of equipment. We removed the interior pouches to reduce weight, allowing full visualization of the workstation, and eliminating the need to go into smaller interior pockets.

Designed for 2U SOP_
Chassis opening (total game changer)_
Tapered base reduces offset_

We designed the 26L to meet the 2 Unit LTOWB SOP for internal storage. After surveying the community, most medics with a 2U SOP were opting for some type of 30L ruck to carry blood internally, while still having enough room for resuscitative equipment.

By creating space efficiencies with a purpose-built product for medics delivering Damage Control Resuscitation, we were able to reduce the overall footprint compared to commercial off-the-shelf 30L rucks. The DCR-26L is remarkably low profile for the size. A true assault bag and a new industry standard.

HYBRID™ IFAK

HYBRID™ IFAK XL

9.75" x 2" x 6.5"
Squadron™

$230.00

A larger fanny pack for POI treatment.

Introducing the Hybrid XL. This POI fanny pack follows the same design as the classic Hybrid IFAK, with a few key upgrades. Its overall size is similar to the Tear-Away Hybrid IFAK, giving you more space for POI equipment setups. To better support the added load, we increased the belt width to 2". The wings accept single-row PALS pouches; if you want to mount a double-row pouch, you can anchor the second row directly to the belt.

The AIRO Suction Unit is a rugged point-of-injury portable suction device. This fully-capable, critical-care suction unit is designed for first-line use by medics in the field environment and is a remarkable 1.6 lbs, offering an impressive run time of 30 minutes at maximum power.

Capable of delivering definitive care for three primary procedures:

- Airway suction for common airway procedures including cricothyroidotomy and intubation.
- Chest suction for management of penetrating chest trauma (30cmH2O continuous or intermittent suction).
- En-route Damage Control Surgery suction for open thoracotomy procedures by advanced resuscitative surgical teams.

Using our patented tightening system, the Pelvic Binder will easily reduce and stabilize open-book pelvic fractures. It packs flat and reduces overall bulk for first-line aid bag or MARCH belt carry.

The Pelvic Binder is a registered device with the US FDA and can only be sold to US customers.

The CoTCCC update, released on 31JAN2017 indicates pelvic binding under "Circulation" for bleeding control, due to common high-energy battlefield MOIs associated with significant morbidity and mortality due to associated vascular injuries. 26% of service members that died in OEF/OIF died with a pelvic fracture.

Reduces EM signature_
Provides indefinite non-powered cooling with appropriate consumable resupply_
Addresses delayed MEDEVAC during LSCO_

The two-unit (2U) whole blood transport container designed to accept multiple Commercial Off-the-Shelf evaporative cooling engines. The system is intended to sustain up to 42 hours of low-titer O whole blood (LTOWB) cooling within transport temperature parameters (10°C), depending on configuration and operating conditions.

Commercially available evaporative cooling systems can provide a non-electric ("analog") cooling method that reduces reliance on batteries and powered refrigeration in constrained environments. Chemical heat sources can drive phase-change and evaporation processes that transfer cooling to a cold plate without active electrical power, enabling extended cooling duration with appropriate consumable resupply.
